

VIP PREVIEW AND RECEPTION

Antillean Visions: Maps and the Making of the Caribbean

Friday, February 2, 2018

5:30 p.m. – 7:00 p.m.

Antillean Visions: Maps and the Making of the Caribbean displays nearly 200 rare, beautiful, and historically significant maps of the Caribbean. The exhibition brings together fascinating views of the region, produced by some of the most famous mapmakers of the past five centuries and including the earliest available published view of the Antilles. Antillean Visions explores the powerful role of cartography in shaping our understanding of the Caribbean.

Exhibition and reception generously supported by HistoryMiami Museum, The Kislak Foundation, UM Libraries, and FORTRESS.

RSVP | m.amezquita@miami.edu

Tel | 305.284.5531

above:

DETAIL

Theodore deBry

Occidentalis Americae Partis, 1594

HistoryMiami Museum

1996.916.106

www.lowemuseum.org

   @lowemuseum

LOWE

This exhibition was generously supported by Jay I. Kislak and the Kislak Foundation Collection; the University of Miami's Libraries, Office of the Provost, College of Arts and Sciences, School of Communications, Center for the Humanities, American Studies and Latin American Studies Programs, Hemispheric Caribbean Studies Group, Institute for Advanced Study of the Americas, Departments of Anthropology, English, Geography and Regional Studies, and History; Beaux Arts; Friends of the Libraries; HistoryMiami Museum; Lowe Members; the Miami-Dade County Department of Cultural Affairs and the Cultural Affairs Council; and the Miami-Dade Mayor and Board of County Commissioners. Thanks are also due to the La Jolla Map Museum, FIU's Wolfsonian Museum, HistoryMiami Museum, and UM Libraries' Department of Special Collections, Cuban Heritage Collection, and the Library of the Rosenstiel School of Marine and Atmospheric Science for lending critical works to this show.